Green Business Globally: from circular business design to green technology solutions

It's been estimated that innovative technologies applied across industries can reduce global CO2 emissions by 86%. We also know that over 80% of a product's environmental footprint is determined during its design phase. In this event, we ask how a framework can be created under article 6 to incentivize greener business operations globally? How can circularity be ensured across global value chains?

Information for panel participants:

The session will last 60 minutes. In order for the session to be dynamic and attention-grabbing for online viewers, we suggest keeping each speaker's intervention short (ca. 5 minutes max.) followed by questions from the moderator and from Slido.

Confirmed panelists must register before close of business on 22 October 2021 by creating their profiles in the registration section of the platform, adding a short biography and a photo. More details from Anna Feldman, VDMA, upon speaker confirmation.

Please also note that as of 01 October 2021, all visitors travelling to the UK must hold a passport, rather than an ID card as it was before.

Livestream: Due to COVID-19 restrictions, the room for our side event in Glasgow will be limited to approximately 25 seats. The session will be live streamed and will be available to all registered attendees on the dedicated platform. The registration for the EU side events at the COP26 will open on 15 October 2021.
